Horn pleads for personal revival through prayer

MONROE, La. (LBM) – Louisiana Baptist Executive Director Steve Horn in his report at the 2021 Louisiana Baptist Convention Annual Meeting, Nov. 16 at North Monroe Baptist Church, issued a challenge for revival and outlined a plan to be more engaged in the prevention of sexual abuse in the church.

ADDRESSING REVIVAL

Horn encouraged messengers to participate in ‘Change Me,’ a 28-day personal revival guide he authored based on Psalm 139:23-24.

“I believe our churches and our nation have no problems that humility before God and His Word would not fix immediately,” Horn said.

Horn said revival is needed because, like the Israelites who wondered in the wilderness, today’s Christ followers are stiff-necked, impatient, tempted to follow people rather than God, filled with pride and desperately need God’s blessing.

“During the COVID quarantine, the Lord put on my heart this message: ‘Change me,’” Horn said. “I can’t change anyone else. I can’t change our circumstances. I can’t change much, but I can ask the Lord to change me. “What came from that was a 28-day resource,” he continued. “I want to invite you to join me. I want to ask you to spend 28 days as this year ends or perhaps as 2022 begins.”

ABITA SPRINGS, La. (LBM) – Two Louisiana Baptist church plants recently celebrated their first baptisms, respectively, as corporate bodies.

SWEETWATER CHURCH

Natalie and Sarah Cowell shared a sweet sister moment, Oct. 31, when they became the first members of SweetWater Church, Abita Springs, to stir the baptismery waters.

MONROE, La. (LBM) – Prayer is a necessity to spark revival within each person, David Cranford said in his 2021 Louisiana Baptist Convention Annual Meeting presidential address, Nov. 16, in the North Monroe Baptist Church.

Drawing from Matthew 6:5-15, Cranford, pastor of First Baptist Church, Ponchatoula, said God has given His children a model to follow in their prayer lives. He said prayer is a practical privilege and refreshingly simple, adding that it involves alone time with God and demonstrates a yielding faith.

Cranford said prayer helps center one’s life on God and His Kingdom. He explained that Christ followers live in a time when it is increasingly difficult to be unplugged, but he stressed the importance of intentionally seeking time alone with God.

“God wants to change us,” he said. “God wants to transform us. Prayer doesn’t change God. It changes you. So, it then becomes consistent for God to do what he wants...”

As the two sisters stepped into a horse trough at the Abita Springs Recreational Center to symbolize their new life in Christ, their mother, Amiee Cowell, was moved to tears because the baptisms signified a spiritual rebirth for the entire family.

“My husband had passed away on cancer in 2019 and I was so angry at God. Then my daughters accepted Christ. My girls are so close and do everything together, so sharing this moment is something they will remember forever.”

In late 2020, the Cowell sisters stepped into a horse trough to be baptized in the Abita Springs Recreational Center.

MONROE, La. (LBM) – Louisiana Baptists enjoyed fellowship and worship during the 2021 LBC Annual meeting Nov. 16 at North Monroe Baptist Church, but also conducted the important business of passing resolutions, addressing a motion, approving a budget and electing leaders.

RESOLUTIONS

Messengers approved five resolutions: expression of appreciation for North Monroe Baptist Church’s hosting of the 2021 LBC Annual Meeting; gratitude for disaster relief ‘partners in the Gospel’; the importance of the Annual Church Profile; the sufficiency of Scripture for race and racial reconciliation; and support for the Louisiana Fairness in Women’s Sport Act (preventing biological males from participating on teams designated for women, a bill which enjoyed overwhelming support from lawmakers but was vetoed by the governor).

But two messengers tried to amend the “Resolution: On the Sufficiency of Scripture for Race and Racial Reconciliation.” This resolution was drafted to address the controversial concepts of Critical Race Theory and Intersectionality, both of which have become hot topics in school districts across the country and during the 2021 election cycle. But concern about both was raised among Southern Baptists after Resolution 9 was adopted by messengers to the 2019 SBC Annual Meeting. That resolution commended both Marxist statements as “useful analytical tools” to “aid in evaluating a variety of human experiences.”

Southern Baptists attempted to correct Resolution 9 during the 2021 SBC Annual Meeting by adopting Resolution 2 that condemned “any theory or worldview that … finds the ultimate identity of human beings in ethnicity … sees the primary problem of humanity as anything other than sin … denies that racism, oppression, or discrimination is rooted, ultimately, in anything other than sin.” However, the SBC resolution stopped short of naming Critical Race Theory and Intersectionality as sinful.

LBC Resolutions Committee Chair Johnny B. Hoychick, a member of the First Baptist Church, Rayville, explained that the committee was unanimous that the “language was proper and so we feel that it should be left in as is.” Using raised ballots, the majority of messengers supported the committee.

Michael Linton, a messenger from First Baptist Church, Ferriday, spoke during a time of debate about a resolution at the LBC Annual Meeting.

Kevin Ulmer, a messenger from First Baptist Church, Ferriday, spoke during a time of debate about a resolution at the LBC Annual Meeting.

LBC messenger Richard Methvin, a messenger from Bistineau Baptist Church, Heflin, made a motion to strike a paragraph from the LBC resolution that documented that Southern Baptists had repented for the sin of racism in 1995. Methvin felt that the paragraph appeared to keep Southern Baptists “in a state of apology.”

LBC Resolutions Committee Chair Johnny B. Hoychick, a member of the First Baptist Church, Rayville, explained that the committee was unanimous that the “language was proper and so we feel that it should be left in as is.” Using raised ballots, the majority of messengers supported the committee.

MONROE, La. (LBM) – Messengers to the 2021 Louisiana Baptist Convention Annual Meeting, Nov. 16, in North Monroe Baptist Church, heard encouraging updates from the state’s four entities and two special reports.

LCU

In his report, President Rick Brewer celebrated the board of trustees’ unanimous vote, Oct. 25, to change the school’s name to Louisiana Christian University. He said it will strengthen the educational institution’s reputation and further advance the Kingdom of God.

He said the university remains committed to preparing graduates and transforming lives, adding that since the start of the fall semester, 47 students have accepted Christ.

Brewer said LCU has launched the Center for Calling and Career for students seeking internships, career advice and information about jobs available in their areas of studies. The center also helps students gain an understanding of how their values and spiritual gifts should be assessed to fully know what God is calling them to do in their lives and careers.

“We are preparing students to think Christianly and preparing them for life,” Brewer said.

Louisiana Christian University President Rick Brewer shared that 47 students have come to faith in Christ since the start of the fall semester.

LCU’s uncompromised commitment to a biblical worldview is reinforced through its Christ, Church, Culture series, Baptist Collegiate Ministry and chapel services.

“We do recognize there is a very, very difficult task that is set before us as a Christian higher education institution,” Langford said. “But God has equipped us for such a time as this.”
State Sen. Beth Mizell was given the Esther Courage Award. Mizell is a member of First Baptist Church, Franklinton.

State Rep. Alan Seabaugh received the Shammah Courage Award. Seabaugh is a member of Broadmoor Baptist Church, Shreveport.

Brian Gunter, pastor of First Baptist Church, Pollock, presented state Rep. Mike Johnson with the Shammah Courage Award. Johnson is a member of First Baptist Church, Pineville.

BAPTIST MESSAGE

Executive Editor Will Hall said the news outlet’s staff and a team from the Association of State Baptist Papers had been on the ground covering Hurricane Ida through photos, videos and stories that were pushed to other state convention media outlets.

“We made a special effort to emphasize the 31 state Baptist conventions that partnered with us,” Hall said. “We felt it was important to get these reports, these photos, these videos out to them so that they could inform their churches about the importance of what they were doing here, about the difference they were making in our state by partnering with us in disaster relief.”

He added that in 2022 the Baptist Message plans to offer a web-only subscription for those who prefer a digital format, and he announced that an RSS feed will be available in 2022 that will allow churches to add BaptistMessage.com headlines to their websites to provide dynamic content updated each time the news outlet updates its website.

PUBLIC POLICY

Hall, who also serves as director of the Office of Public Policy, said his office testified and provided key resources to legislators and committee members on several key pro-life and pro-family bills.

He also thanked Louisiana Baptists for helping in a large way to pass the 2020 state constitutional amendment, the Love Life Amendment (which prevents a rogue actor in the judicial system from suddenly finding a right to abortion in the state constitution that is not actually written in it), noting that Louisiana Baptists inspired other state Baptists.

He said the statewide ballot initiative garnered 1,374,167 favorable votes, the most in Louisiana’s history for either a candidate or ballot measure and noted that “because of your leadership other state Baptist conventions are undertaking initiatives like ours to protect common sense pro-life laws in their states with constitu-
Messengers elected new officers for the Louisiana Baptist Convention Annual Meeting: Price Harris, evangelist, Calvary Baptist Church, Shreveport, second vice president; Steven Kelly, pastor, Bayou Vista Baptist Church, Morgan City, and director of missions, Gulf Coast Baptist Association, vice-president; and Reggie Bridges, pastor, Temple Baptist Church, Ruston, president.

Messengers approved a Cooperative Program budget of $17,626,136, a decrease of $1,027,564, or 5.5 percent. Cooperative Program projections are based on actual receipts from August 2020 through July 2021.

The allocation formula for distributing Cooperative Program gifts between the Southern Baptist Convention and Louisiana Baptist causes was not changed, 63.26 percent to support ministries in the state and 36.74 percent to be forwarded to fund national entities.

Reggie Bridges, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Ruston, was elected president. Steven Kelly, pastor of Bayou Vista Baptist Church, Morgan City, and director of missions for Gulf Coast Baptist Association, was elected first vice president, and Price Harris, an evangelist from Calvary Baptist Church, Shreveport, was elected second vice president.

All three men were given individual votes of acclamation by the Convention — a single ballot cast by the LBC executive director in view of no opposition to any of the candidates.

The final messenger count for the 2021 Annual Meeting was 530.

Four new churches were accepted into membership of the LBC: Family Church NOLA, Kenner; Gulf Coast Baptist Church, Golden Meadow; New Friendship Baptist Church, Fishville; and Pointe of Life Community Church, Plaucheville.

The 2022 Annual Meeting is scheduled for Nov. 15 and will be held in Alexandria at Calvary Baptist Church.

Sulphur, asked that the resolution be amended to not completely condemn Critical Race Theory and Intersectionality, arguing that “there may be some truth in there to be found somewhere.”

Hoychick responded by pointing out “there’s only one way for reconciliation and that’s through Jesus,” adding that “there’s no man-made theory that will reconcile people.”

He concluded by noting that “from the committee’s perspective,” specifically condemning Critical Race Theory and Intersectionality addressed “those things that are out in the culture right now” and that the wording clearly stated “what we mean and what we stand on. We stand on Scripture.” Messengers overwhelmingly agreed by raised ballots.

MOTION

David Fuller, a messenger from First Baptist Church, Baton Rouge, submitted a motion to “condemn the Southern Baptist Convention President Ed Litton for plagiarizing his sermons for many years from his pulpit and call for him to resign from his position as President of the Southern Baptist Conven-

MOTION

During the morning session, the motion was ruled out of order by the Committee on the Order of Business. But Fuller brought the matter up again in the afternoon during miscellaneous business, at which time messengers voted by raised ballots not to consider the motion.

BUDGET APPROVED

Messengers approved a Cooperative Program budget of $17,626,136, a decrease of $1,027,564, or 5.5 percent. Cooperative Program projections are based on actual receipts from August 2020 through July 2021.

The allocation formula for distributing Cooperative Program gifts between the Southern Baptist Convention and Louisiana Baptist causes was not changed, 63.26 percent to support ministries in the state and 36.74 percent to be forwarded to fund national entities.

is we would be a faithful presence in the neighborhood to proclaim the Gospel and serve our neighbors,” he said. “That kind of witness will pay off in the long run. Ministry isn’t a sprint. tional amendments.” Hall concluded his Office of Public Policy presentation by acknowledging three state legislators: Sen. Beth Mizell, a member of First Baptist Church, Franklinton; Rep. Alan Seabaugh, a member of Broadmoor Baptist Church, Shreveport; and Rep. Mike Johnson, a member of First Baptist Church, Pineville:

-- Mizell was lauded for championing the Fairness in Women’s Sports Act, which would have prevented biological males from participating on teams designated for women, a bill which enjoyed overwhelming support from lawmakers but was vetoed by the governor, and subsequently missed a needed supermajority by two votes in the House during an historic override session.

-- Seabaugh was honored for taking a stand in the face of threatened gun violence and an actual physical attack to push for a simple language change (to prevent equating “dating” to “marriage”) in a bill that offered protections from violence for women and children.

-- Johnson was honored for his work behind the scenes to secure $12 million in support for foster care and adoption in the state. Hall invited Brian Gunter, pastor, First Baptist Church, Pollock, to the podium.

MORAL, SOCIAL CONCERNS

Afterward, Gunter used Johnson’s efforts on behalf of foster children to launch his CMSC report, offering that nearly 4,000 children are in Louisiana’s foster care system. He said that the committee had set up an ad hoc panel to work with the state legislature in 2022 to form a foster care and adoption legislative task force to identify ways to improve the system.

“We want those children to be cared for with Christ’s love by Christ’s people,” Gunter said.

He also explained that while multiple pro-life laws have been passed in the state recently, the fight for life is not over, reporting that every day an average of 22 babies lose their lives at abortion clinics in the state.

“We have abortion clinics in Shreveport, New Orleans and Baton Rouge and it is our mission to shut those abortion clinics down once and for all and protect every child in Louisiana by law,” he said. “Thank you so much Louisiana Baptists for your support and let’s fight to take care of our state’s children and to save the lives of the unborn in the days to come.”

LOUISIANA BAPTIST CHILDREN’S HOME

Perry Hancock, president and CEO of the Louisiana Baptist Children’s Home and Family Ministries, said more than 3,000 children and others have heard about hope found in Jesus Christ this year through the entity’s various ministries.

“Every day, day in and day out, when you wake up in the morning as a Louisiana Baptist you know that God is working, meeting needs, changing lives through your Louisiana Baptist Children’s Home,” he said.

Denis Phelps, director of church and alumni relations, shared in the report that the entity recently restarted the Ministerial Care Residential Program. Louisiana Baptist terminated ministers and International Mission Board missionaries (on stateside assignment, transitioning to a new ministry or recently retired) are eligible to apply for a free apartment on the LBCHFM’s campus in Monroe for up to one year.

“We want to say ‘thank you’ to you for supporting our Louisiana Baptist Convention and your strong support of the Cooperative Program, which allows us to reach out to help encourage and support the children and the families of our pastors and our missionaries in the Southern Baptist Convention,” said Phelps, who also is director of the Ministerial Care Residential Program.

LOUISIANA BAPTIST FOUNDATION

Louisiana Baptist Foundation Executive Director Jeff Steed said the entity is available to visit churches and educate Louisiana Baptists about such new services as church loans, payroll services, capital campaigns, in addition to money management for churches and it conducts seminars to aid Louisiana Baptists and churches on how to structure an estate or make a will.

Steed said that in the last year, the foundation helped Louisiana Baptists: establish more than $1.6 million in special gifts for churches and other ministries; earn $1.4 million in income through a short-term fund; and receive returns of $25.1 million in long-term accounts.

“The Louisiana Baptist Foundation is advancing the Kingdom one dollar at a time, one ministry at a time, one life at a time,” Steed said.

Prayer is not complicated and does not require a secret formula, Cranford said. He encouraged messengers to have a more focused prayer life.

“What’s the best way to pray?” he said. “The best way to pray the prayer you will use?

“Talk to God as you would talk to your best friend,” he said.

“The secret to praying is to pray,” Cranford pointed out. “The vast majority of us in this room don’t need to learn how to pray. We need to learn to pray more.”

BIBLE STUDY

Steve Echols, president of Brewton-Parker College, Mount Vernon, Georgia, said for revival to come, Christ followers must exhibit the fruit of the spirit.

“God is ready to empower us with the Holy Spirit,” Echols said, basing his Bible study on Galatians 5:22-23. “We can’t do it humanly. We don’t have to invent something. We don’t have to dream up something. We just need to allow the Holy Spirit to have His way in us.”

Echols said revival in America will come when the church shows up faithfully, overcoming obstacles they may encounter.

“Whoever tries to exalt himself God will humble, and whoever humbles himself God will exalt,” Conner said. “The days of us exalting ourselves, lauding our accomplishments, claiming our moral high ground are gone. It’s time for God’s people to humble ourselves and confess we are sinners in need of God’s mercy. The plea for God’s mercy is a plea for change to take place in our lives which we want.”

Conner added that mercy leads to humility. “God’s mercy is the heartbeat of humility,” Conner said. “If you want, if you desire, to be humble before God, think on His mercy – the fact that He has not given to you what you deserve. He’s given you the abundance of grace from the riches of His wealth and glory. He, in this moment, is molding you and shaping you to be in the image of His Son Jesus because He loves you.”

OREN CONNER

Oren Conner, pastor of First Baptist Church, Baton Rouge, in his convention message challenged messengers to rely on and call upon the mercy of God.

Drawing from Luke 18, Conner said Christ followers must be more like the sinner who asked for God’s mercy and less like the Pharisee who believed he did not need it.

“Whoever tries to exalt himself God will humble, and whoever humbles himself God will exalt,” Conner said. “The days of us exalting ourselves, lauding our accomplishments, claiming our moral high ground are gone. It’s time for God’s people to humble ourselves and confess we are sinners in need of God’s mercy. The plea for God’s mercy is a plea for change to take place in our lives which we want.”

Conner added that mercy leads to humility. “God’s mercy is the heartbeat of humility,” Conner said. “If you want, if you desire, to be humble before God, think on His mercy – the fact that He has not given to you what you deserve. He’s given you the abundance of grace from the riches of His wealth and glory. He, in this moment, is molding you and shaping you to be in the image of His Son Jesus because He loves you.”

Retired and bivocational ministers were recognized during a special awards lunch for their service: R.V. Couch, Lake Lilly Baptist, Jonesville; Jerry Penfield, retired, and Marc Daniels, First Baptist Avondale, Avondale. Wallace Primeaux, retired, who was unable to attend, also was recognized.
Pastors Conference speakers: Stand firm for Christ

By Brian Blackwell
Message staff writer

MONROE, La. (LBM) — During the 2021 Louisiana Baptist Pastor’s Conference, Nov. 15, in the North Monroe Baptist Church, Monroe, speakers offered words of encouragement and conviction to pastors.

TITUS WHITE

Titus White, pastor of Grace Community Church, Baton Rouge, spoke during the opening session from Daniel 3:13-14, 25 to urge the crowd to stand firm on the Word of God.

He pointed to the faithfulness of Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, who refused to bow to the image of gold made by King Nebuchadnezzar. He said they were brave in the midst of captivity, united in the midst of conformity and safe in the midst of captivity — and their obedience was rewarded.

“God has given them a platform of persecution to stand before men so God could get the glory,” White said. “We’ve got to understand that God often puts us in a platform of persecution that God can get the glory out of our lives. They did not bend or bow. They stood firm on the Word of God.”

EDDIE WREN

Eddie Wren, pastor of First Baptist Church, Rayville, reminded pastors they can find peace and joy in Jesus. Preaching from Philippians 4, Wren said if pastors are going to stand firm they must worship, pray and act like Jesus.

“If we are going to stand firm, we have to find our joy in the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords,” Wren said. “We have to find joy in the one who holds us in His hand and is so strong that no one can snatch us from Him.”

Wren said Christians should practice prayer, supplication and thanksgiving when worry begins to set in.

“If we don’t go before God with a grateful heart then we need to do a check because something’s wrong,” he said. “We’ve forgotten who He is and who we are. Instead of worrying, we should go to the Lord. When we take our worries to Christ, we are trusting Him; and the peace of God which surpasses all comprehension will guard our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.”

JAMIE DEW

Jamie Drew, president of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, used 1 Peter 3:13 to challenge pastors to remain anchored in their calling to share the Gospel in a world hostile to the message of Christ. He said it is an honor to suffer for righteousness’ sake and that Christ followers should love Jesus supremely, share Christ at all times, speak respectfully and keep a clear conscience.

Dew added that while he is saddened by the lack of respect for one another on social media by some who profess to be Christ followers, he is encouraged by the spirit of those he visits each week at churches in Louisiana and across the United States.

“At the end of the day Southern Baptists are kind, they’re faithful, they love Jesus and they love people,” Dew said. “And it gives me hope. The Gospel that we preach is offensive in its own right. The Gospel confronts people where they are and it says, ‘You are a wretch, you are a sinner.’ That’s why God says, ‘Don’t add our offensiveness on top of that.’ Always be ready to give a defense of the hope that is within you. Share Christ with people but do it with gentleness and respect.”

STEVE HORN
Louisiana Baptist Executive Director Steve Horn cited 1 Peter 5:5-11 to exhort pastors to be hopeful and stand firm when facing spiritual battles. Horn said pastors who are in spiritual battles must stand firm against pride and Satan – that they must stand firm in the faith. He also reminded pastors to be humble toward others and God as they fight this spiritual battle against evil forces.

“The ultimate evidence of our trust in Jesus to be our living hope is to act in humility,” Horn said. “As we humble ourselves, we cast our cares upon Him.”

Horn closed his message with a challenge to remain strong in the faith. “In face of everything culture throws at us, let us be reminded here today this is no time to go wobbly,” he said. “Stand firm.”

WAYLON BAILEY
Waylon Bailey, pastor of First Baptist Church, Covington, cited Jeremiah 1:4-19 to remind pastors they are formed to do God’s work, for the Master and His plan, to proclaim God’s Word and to be faithful and true.

Bailey said Christ followers will be tempted to draw back from the fight, but that they must resist and remember that now is the time not to retreat. “It’s not time for us to keep our heads down,” Bailey said. “It’s time for us to get our heads up.”

Bailey cautioned pastors not to succumb to Satan’s temptations of discouragement, fear and timidity. Instead, he told them, be bold and courageous. “Somebody will fight against you,” he said. “There’s an enemy who fights against us and certainly he is not harmless. But the enemy will not overcome you because I am with you,” says the Lord. God’s way is not to take us out of the fight. It is God’s way to lock arms with us in the middle of the fight. Because He does that, we can be faithful and true and obedient unto Him.”

TOMMY FRENCH
Tommy French, pastor emeritus of Jefferson Baptist Church, Baton Rouge, reminded pastors to stand firm in a wicked culture that embraces sin. He said multiple prophecies are being fulfilled and that great tribulations are on the horizon. Therefore, the Church must stand strong and be a bold witness to a world that needs Christ.

“God has called us, the pastors, to teach message of eternal life,” French said. “Your faithfulness to preach that message is the only thing that stands between sinful men and the eternal lake of fire.”

TONY PERKINS
Tony Perkins, president of the Family Research Council, an evangelical public policy ministry, based in Washington, D.C., with offices in Baton Rouge, said if Christ followers want to see His Kingdom advanced in today’s culture, they must be strong in the Lord, be prepared for the conflict, be bold to speak and not remain silent.

Perkins, a former interim pastor of Greenwell Springs Baptist Church near Baton Rouge, Louisiana representative and member of the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom, encouraged pastors to spend time in prayer and Scripture reading, and not to try to fit in with the culture.

“Are you spending time on a daily basis in your prayer closet crying out to God for your community, for this state and for this nation,” Perkins said. “Are you spending time in his Word other than just sermon preparation? Are you challenging your people to be in the Word of God? We are powerless without the Word of God. Despite the challenges the United States is facing, Perkins said he remains encouraged by the men and women of God who feel called to serve in politics.

“One reason I’m encouraged that God is not finished with America is He is continuously calling more and men and women of deep faith to our nation’s capital to serve,” Perkins said. “Men and women who love the Lord Jesus and they are there at great sacrifice to serve because they believe the Lord has called them there. Last time I checked God doesn’t call people to go in when He’s ready to destroy, when He’s finished, He calls them out.”

asking, ‘Lord, change me.’”

Horn asked messengers to come forward and pick up a ‘Change Me’ booklet, adding that state missions services personnel and some Executive Board members completed the challenge earlier this year.

“Would you be willing to pray, ‘Lord, change me. Search me. Know my heart. Test me and know my concerns. See if there is any offensive way in me; lead me in the everlasting way.’?”

ADDRESSING PERSONNEL POLICIES

Horn said the state missions and ministry staff will meet in January to address existing personnel policies, best practices and to develop helpful resources for how to handle matters related to sexual abuse. He pledged that the LBC Executive Board staff will continue to work throughout the year on this issue, offering other action steps for 2022:

-- review and make necessary changes to Executive Board personnel policies;
-- conduct a review of procedures and staff training for Louisiana Baptist-sponsored camps and events;
-- explore how to help churches implement best practices to avoid sexual abuse;
-- train staff as resource providers to aid churches in sexual abuse response;
-- review best practices for equipment for churches to honor, care for and minister to those harmed by sexual abuse; and
-- work with Louisiana Baptist entities to review their policies and training on sexual abuse prevention and reporting.

“Whereas churches only choose to cooperate with us, we do exist in part to serve the local church,” he said. “We also have cooperative ministries in disaster relief, BCMs and camps. In light of this I want to offer my personal commitment before we meet in annual meeting this time next year.”

The Scripture Crypto is a Bible verse in which one letter has been substituted for another, thus encoding the verse. To find out what the verse is, you must determine what each letter is a substitute for. An “a,” for example, may stand for a “z” in this week’s issue of ScriptureCrypto.

Next week, “a” could stand for a “u.” Each week, each letter is different. Solve by trial and error. The answer will be given next week. Note: All numerals, such as those in the scripture reference after the verse, are spelled out.

Clues: P = R; O = A

Answer to October 28 Scripture Crypto: Joel two:thirteen
